Officials here attach no importance to the presence of the 4.7 inch guns which Consul Garrels reports the Persia as carrying, provided it can be shown they were for defensive purposes only. The rules of the United States in regard to guns on merchant ships were set forth in a memorandum sent by the State Department to Count von Bernstoff, the German Ambassador, on September 19, 1914. It read as follows:

"A.-A merchant vessel of belligered nationality may carry an armament and ammunition for the sole purpose of defence without acquiring the character of a ship of war.

"B. The presence of an armament."

B. The presence of an armament and ammunition on board a merchant ship creates a presumption that the armament is for offensive purposes, but the owners or agents may overcome this the owners or agents may overcome this presumption by showing that the vessel carries armament solely for defence.

"C.
